RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Research Assistant, Department of History, Wesleyan University May 2023–May 2026
 For Ying Jia Tan, Associate Professor of History

“Bridging Cultures: U.S.-China Connections in the Archives”

- Examined archival collections across New England liberal arts colleges to trace missionary activity in 19th- and 20th-century China and reconstruct early experiences of Chinese and Japanese students in U.S. higher education.
- Co-presented findings at exploratory workshops sponsored by the New England Humanities Consortium (NEHC) and the Alliance to Advance Liberal Arts Colleges (AALAC).
- Currently supporting the development of a sourcebook on the transformation of U.S.-China relations through liberal arts education.

Work on the Meng Chih and Tong Enzheng collections at the College of East Asian Studies (CEAS)

- Cataloged and digitized portions of archival and book collections at CEAS.
- Assisted Sophie Volpp (UC Berkeley) and Lei Qiang (National Library of China) in locating correspondences between Hu Shih and Yuan Tung-li, National Peiping Library’s longtime director.
- Created a bilingual online repository for archaeologist Tong Enzheng’s science fiction novellas.

Research Assistant, Department of Religion, Wesleyan University May 2023–May 2026
For Mary-Jane Rubenstein, Dean of the Social Sciences and Professor of Religion

“Cosmic Missions: Religion and Space Exploration”

- Collected and translated policy documents, propaganda materials, science fiction texts, and media commentary to analyze rhetorical shifts of China’s space program from the Mao era to the present for Prof. Rubenstein’s presentation at the “Spirit of Space in China and the West” conference, Duke Kunshan University, June 2024, and her forthcoming book chapter.
- For the project’s forthcoming edited volume (co-edited by Mary-Jane Rubenstein and Lance Gharavi; under contract with Columbia UP): reviewed interdisciplinary scholarship on the development of modern U.S. space sciences, surveyed critical perspectives from various spiritual and intellectual traditions, and prepared an annotated bibliography.
- Copy-edited the full manuscript of the edited volume for clarity, accuracy, grammar, and style; verified citations, collated references, cataloged images, and secured author permissions.

Research Assistant, Department of English, Wesleyan University May–August 2025
For Rachel Heng, Novelist and Assistant Professor of English

“Paradeisos: A Novel”

- Conducted archival research on colonial Singapore from the 1870s to the 1920s to support Rachel Heng’s upcoming novel on coolie labor and the making of Singapore’s Botanic Gardens.
- Located and analyzed primary records such as colonial administrative documents, photographs, maps, guidebooks, commercial catalogues, and medical and scientific journals.
- Transcribed and translated oral history interviews on everyday life in British Straits Settlements.
- Synthesized secondary literature on the histories of Chinese migration, secret society, agriculture, and botany in colonial Southeast Asia.
